

AMERICAN GIRL INJURED IN RIOT

WHEN MISS PANKHURST WAS ARRESTED

MISS ZELLE EMERSON.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Miss Zelle Emerson, the wealthy young American militant suffragist whose home is in Jackson, Mich., is recovering from the injuries she sustained during the riot that followed the attempt of a squad of London hooligans to arrest Miss Sylvia Pankhurst while she was addressing an audience in a hall in the east end. Miss Emerson was swept from her feet and trampled upon during the turmoil in which Miss Pankhurst was rescued from the police by her followers. The young English leader succeeded in evading the officers in the crowd. She is wanted to serve an unexpired prison term.

NO COWARDS ON VOLTURNO SAYS
CAPTAIN INCH

Members of Crew Leaped Into Ocean to Show Passengers How It Was Done—Has Nothing But Praise for All.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Francis Inch, the boyish looking Briton, who commanded the burned steamer Volturmo, came to port Thursday night bringing with him 57 survivors, passengers and crew, of his ill-starred vessel. His story of the disaster, in which 136 lives were lost, had preceded him by wireless, but in a cabin of the Kroonland which brought him here, Inch told his tale in simply phrased and modestly spoken detail that described more vividly than the wireless could picture the panorama of the Volturmo's loss and the rescue of more than 500 of those she had on board.

Cowardice there was none on the Volturmo, either among officers or crew, Inch said. There was no rush of seamen which made it necessary for him to warn them back with his revolver. His revolver was in a drawer in his cabin and it burned with the ship. And no one on board drew a revolver. "I did not expect a boat could live in these seas when the Carmania and the other first few ships came up."

The Carmania did drop a boat, Inch declared, but it could not get near for the Volturmo drifted faster than the crew could row. Later the Carmania sent forth six rafts, but they drifted across the Volturmo's bow and disappeared. More than that the Carmania could not do, Inch said.

Eighteen cabin and steerage passengers entered the first lifeboat that ventured to leave the Volturmo. Only enough of the crew stepped in, to man it, said Inch. They did not rush to it and it was not overcrowded. It entangled itself in its after tackle and capsized. All in it were drowned, except Chief Officer Miller and a steward who climbed into it after it had righted, and were rescued.

Into the next boat went 30 passengers and ten sailors. This boat got away all right but has not been heard from. The third boat took off 40, ten of them sailors. As she settled into the water, ten more jumped aboard from the Volturmo's deck. A wave swept it under the Volturmo's stern. "She just sat on it and crushed it out of sight," said Inch. "The boat's dived and was the only one to escape."

In Good Condition.

Inch denied reports of rotting tackle and fire hose and of unsafe life boats, all of which were in good condition, he said. He counted only three explosions, the last one wrecking wheel and compass so that a hand-gear had to be rigged up.

Inch denied stories of steerage passengers that women were swept overboard and babies trampled on in a rush to be rescued in the Grosser Kurfurst.

first's first boat that came in response to Lloyd's errand. Officers urged men and women to jump overboard, for the lifeboat could not get near enough for them to be lowered into it. None dared to jump. "Show them how to jump," Inch told his crew. Two at a time they leaped over the rail. When passengers saw them reach the lifeboat, they followed them into the sea. With boat hooks and oars some were rescued. Others went to their death. No women were removed in this way.

Found No One Alive.
"Before I climbed down I went over the ship to see if any one remained," said Inch. "The fire had eaten its way beyond amidship under the decks. I found no one alive, though there were bodies in the fore-castle, men who had been cut off and burned to death. I went to the rail with my dog, wrapping it in a blanket. I leaned over. 'Here,' I said, 'catch my baby.' I dropped the dog into the arms of a Kroonland officer in the lifeboat. He opened the blanket tenderly. 'Why, it's a dog,' he said, 'I thought it was your kid.'"

Inch's three "kids," and their mother are in London. One of his first acts upon arriving here was to send them a cablegram. Their father went 36 hours without eating or drinking, refusing to leave the work of fire fighting. "I smoked, smoked about all the time, cigars, pipes, cigarettes, anything I could get," Inch said. A blast of heat blinded his eyes with pain and the skin peeled from his face when he received his first medical attention after being rescued. They had to drop cocaine into his eyes before he could see again.

Among the survivors on the Kroonland were three children, the whereabouts of their parents unknown.

ALUMNI MEETS TODAY

High School Graduates to Take Part in Dedication.

Members of the South Bend high school alumni association will meet Friday night at the home of Mrs. W. H. Swintz, 712 W. Colfax a., to make plans to participate in the exercises attendant to the dedication of the new high school building. Plans for a concert to be given by the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra on Thanksgiving day will also be discussed.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER
TROUBLES DISAPPEAR

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After Few Doses of Croxone.

If you are bothered with backache—or rheumatism, have disagreeable, annoying bladder or urinary disorders to contend with—or suffer with any other of the many miseries that come from weak kidneys, here is a guaranteed remedy you can depend upon. It soaks right in and cleans out the stopped up kidneys and makes them filter and sift out the poisonous waste matter from the blood. It neutralizes and dissolves the uric acid that lodges in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder.

More than a few doses of Croxone are seldom required to relieve even the obstinate, long standing cases. You will find Croxone entirely different from all other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package costs but a trifle and your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time.
